

East Hartford, CT artist Graciela Quiñones Rodríguez making a cuatro, a Puerto Rican stringed instrument, under the watchful eye of master luthier William Cumpiano from Easthampton, MA. Both will give a hands-on demonstration of their art form at ICR's regional folk arts festival.
photo courtesy of William Cumpiano

Master fiddler Rosaire LeHoux from Willimantic, CT (left) performing with apprentice Daniel Boucher from Bristol, CT (right). They will play together at the festival.
photo credit: Lynne Williamson

Ukrainian painted eggs, known as pysanky, will be displayed at the festival. The pysanky shown left were made by exhibiting artist Father Paul Luniw. photo credit: Lynne Williamson

Traditional iconography, a liturgical art with origins from the early days of the Christian Church, will be on display at ICR's regional folk arts festival. The icon shown left of St. Luke was written by Polish iconographer Marek Czarnecki. photo credit: Phillip Fortune

Raquel Figueiredo and Warm Heart, a troupe of young Cape Verdean dancers from Waterbury, CT will perform at ICR's regional folk arts festival. photo courtesy of Lynne Williamson

Artist Jason Roseman, a Steel pan maker originally from Trinidad, in his studio in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. Jason will play steel pan at the festival. photo courtesy of Jason Roseman

Cambodian singer and dancer Somaly Hay from Waterford, CT will perform at the festival. photo courtesy of Somaly Hay

Master artist Eldrid Arntzen (right) teaches the traditional art of rosemaling, Norwegian decorative painting, to an apprentice. Eldrid and other Southern New England artisans will give hands-on demonstrations of their art forms at ICR's folk arts festival. photo courtesy of Eldrid Arntzen

Puerto Rican bomba dancer Lydia Perez from Providence, RI will perform at the folk arts festival. photo courtesy of Lynne Williamson

Dancer Joao dos Santos (left) will demonstrate the fandango, a popular Portuguese dance, at the festival. photo credit: Lynne Williamson